substance, this answer to the general questions as to the state of affairs in Le forte county: "On arriving at Green-wood I found some excitement among the people, not, as I believe, from any fear of bloodshed between the races in a conflict of arms, but rather the menace of the negroes and their defiant attitude of the two days before, and this was probably intensified by the fact that the negroes, or at least quite a number of "The inaccessibility of Mintor City, the vicinity of the disturbance, rendered information from there very difficult, it being seventy miles by water and twenty-six by land. The heat running from Greenwood to some distance above Mintor City was some hours behind, and this delay could not be explained. In the meantime the three military companies had arrived and quite a numcounties of Carrotton and Grenada. The citizen volunteers, or a number of them at least, seemed determined to baye matters their own way and it was thought beat that Isbould address them. They assembled in front of the hotel and I spoke to them frankly. I had come in person with the troops to see that peace and order was restored. I demounced mob law as being wicked, disreputable and unworthy of Mississippians."

In conclusion the Governor said he had no fears of further trouble.

The Capital Light Gnard of the city arrived here from Leforte county at 3 p. m. to-day, having left Mintor city yesterday at 3 p. m. They report that there were 275 armed negroes congregated near Mintor city, but they had been dispersed before the arrival of the military. There was a large body of white men mounted and armed, who had flocked there from various points before the arrival of the troops.

flocked there from various points before the arrival of the troops.

These men had dispersed the negroes and captured some of the leaders. Reports as to whether any negroes had been killed or the number captured were very conflicting. One negro was certainly killed by another negro for refusing to join them. One man told the officers that he saw six dead negroes six miles from the rivar. The troops captured and turned over to the sheriff forty-eight negroes. It was reported after the troops left that one of the negro leaders was hung. The sheriff aner the trops left that one of the under whose orders the troops were placed notified them that they were needed no longer and they took his re-ceipt for the negroes he had captured and left by boat.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Immediately upon the opening of the Crouin trial this morning, discussion upon the proper questions to be submitted to the jurors was resumed. "Gentlemen," said the Court, "before the State is asked to respond to the propositions that were sub mitted by the defense yesterday, I wish to say that I have examined these ques tions myself very carefully, and I find that a number of them are practically duplicates. And there are certain ones that I could not permit as I deem proper believing the whole matter anyway to be very largely discretionary with the Court. I should like to have the State Court. I should like to have the State now simply say that these questions should be permitted: First—Have you formed an opinion as to whether Dr. Cronin was taken to the Carlson cottage by the horse and buggy engaged by Daniel Coughlin from Dinna, the liveryman? Second—Have you an opinion as to whether or not Martin Burke, one of defendants was the tenant of said Carl-man? Second—Have you an opinion as to whether or not Martin Burke, one of defendants, was the tenant of said Carlson cottage? Third—Have you an opinion that the so-called Clan-na-Gaei society is in any way to blame for the death of Dr. Cronin?"

Mr. Ingham, of counsel for the State, cited a case where a murder was committed by a certain Indian, and the juror was asked if he believed that an Indian had committed the crime. The juror said that he did, but the court had held that he was a proper juror. Discussion finally settled that these three questions would be the only ones asked of jurors who have read the newspaper reports. All the defendants

A member of the company told your correspondent that it was impossible to get any reliable information as to what really had occurred; that it was a certainty that from 300 to 400 armed men had congregated, vowing vengeance against the whites on Saturday night, and was certain that large numbers of white men had dispersed and captured some of them, but no frue account could be obtained of the loss of life, as the violence occurred back from the river several miles. The white people of Shell Mound deserted the place on Saturday and sought refuge in safer quarters.

A SHIP ON FIRE The "Bay of Naples" Burned With a Cargo of Oil Aboard. New York, Sept. 3.—Early this mornng fire was discovered in the hold of the ship Bay of Naples, lying off Bedloe's Island, and bound for India with a cargo ship Bay of Naples, lying off Bedioc's Island, and bound for India with a cargo of kerosene oil. The Bay of Naples is a British ship commanded by Captain Thompson. The police boat patrol in answer to blue lights burned on board the vessel, proceeded at ones to go along-side. The audden extinguishing of the lights prevented the patrol from coming up with the ship. The tug Lueder, on her way to Philadelphia saw the danger signals and ran alongside. So did the tug Charm. Both towed the burning ship down to "Governor's Island and beached her. The crews of the ship and tugs did all they could to extinguish the falmes raing in the hold, but they made but little progress. Meanwhile the patrol found the Bay of Naples and sent a number of men who ran the hose on board and into the held. Four powerful streams were soon pouring on the burning oil. The flames succeeded in bursting out through the decks. Half I an hour's work by the patrol men suisiped to put sixteen feet of water in the Gailp's hold, and effectually extinguish the flames. The Bay of Naples is still daground. She is a full rigged ship, and its probably worth $75,000. The cargo is insured in a number of companies. The vessel will have to be docked before the estual extent of the damage is known.

She gave her plan of teaching music to pupil 5 and 6 years old. She made the remark before beginning the lesson, that the object of teaching music in the public schools was not to help those who had musical instructions at home, but to reach the great mass of children who would never have any musical instruction at all did they not attend the public school. She also said that every child could be taught to read music. Prof. Houck talked on "The First Day

Elementary geography includes all that geography that a child can learn by observation; foreign geography includes all that lies beyond that. Elementary is a better word than primary geography, from the fact that the elements of geography are found everywhere. She gave some interesting methods of teaching size, location, &c., by comparison, or in going from the known to the unknown.

At the conclusion of Miss Coffin's interesting talk an adjournment was had known to the unknown.

At the conclusion of Miss Coffin's interesting talk an adjournment was had for dinner.

The afternoon session opened with the singing of "Bringing in the Sheaves" by the members of the Institute, after which Miss Boasburg continued her lessons in music, giving a lesson from the first chart, which is to follow the instructions from the blackboard. Her lessons are very much enjoyed. She uses the teachers as a class of children, and all respond so well that the lesson takes the form of an actual school drill with the children. She said a the close of the lesson that the little children would "literally learn to sing by note, the little songs they had learned by rote."

Everybody joined in singing Dr. Houck's favorite, "So say we all of us." Mrs. M. Stevens Hart, lately of Washington, D. C., occupied the next hall hour in giving a most interesting and profitable talk on the subject of elecution. She spoke of so-called elecution and elecutionists, giving several amusing incidents to illustrate. True elecution is an art; it comes from nature. The child is the true elecutionist. Gestures are often more potent than speech. We should teach children how to speak and how to keep silent. Teach them how to breathe. Many can breathe their lungs full of air and then cannot use it. Teach the elementary sounds. At the close of her talk she read "The Old Oaken Bucket!" in a charmingly artistic manner that delighted all oi her hearers.

the elementary sounds. At the close of her talk she read "The Old Oaken Bucket" in a charmingly artistic manner that delighted all of her hearers. After some more singing led by Prof. Houck, Miss Coffin gave another one of her interesting talks on History, dwelling particularly on what to teach. If we attempt to teach everything we teach too superficially, and hence teach nothing well. If we try to give a child a new topic every day we fail. We teach the past to show the present, and to appreciate it. We also show the forces that influence our country at the present. It is not necessary to teach every battle of a war, but merely the causes and the results. Pupila should be taught to the Revolution, the Declaration of Independence, etc. As usual, Miss Coffin's talk was entertaining and was listened to with the closest attention.

Superintendent Jones, of Bellaire, and Superintendent Mitchell, of St. Clairsville, were present all day. Miss Taylor, the training teacher of the Bellaire schools, was also present.

Prof. Robert A. Armstrong, principal of the West Liberty Normal School attended yesterday afternoon's session, and will remain here for two or three days.

Mrs. Hart said it was harder to teach a man how to use his tongue than it was to teach a woman, because he did not know what to do with it when it was still.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—At to-day's session f the Senatorial commission investigaterence to the Inter-State Commerc aw, Charles E. Ingersoll was examined. He said that when he first went into the ressed beef business there was twice eastern buyers that there is now. Under the old system there was a great deal more competition. Out of a l steer witness believed about 675 pounds of good beef could be obtained. That class of beef would bring from 31 to 4 cents a pound.

"When in the last ten years were cattle the highest?"

"In 1882. They commenced going up in 1881 and reached high water mark in June, 1882. A rapid decrease began in 1885. Went lower in 1886, and reached the lowest figure in 1887. In 1888 there was a slight improvement during the summer months, but that was only for the best grade of cattle."

"Now," said Senator Vest, "it has been said here that the enormous fall in the price of cattle in 1882 was by overproduction, but I see that since 1882 there has been a very marked decrease in the supply and still the price went down. How do you account for that?"

"I hardly know how to account for it," replied the witness.

Abert McCurit, a stock ward com-

"Thardly know how to account for it," replied the witness.

Albert McCordy, a stock yard commission man, said he noticed considerable of a change in the manner of doing business in his trade of late years.

"Do I understand you to say," asked the Chairman, "that the most of the cattle bought out there are bought by dressed beef men?"

"Yea."

lle bought out there are bought by dressed beef men?"
"Yes."
"Would it not be possible for these men to manipulate the markets?"
"Yes, I think they have it in their power, but as far as my observation goes they do not do so."
"That will do, sir."
J. Rold, a former chief bookkeeper and confidential man for Nelson Morris & Co., was the next witness.
"Can you state," asked the chairman, "whether you know of any agreement or combination between Nelson Morris, Armour & Co., Swift & Co., and others?"
"Am I obliged to answer that question?"

"Yes, sir, you are."
"Well, they have made a combination mong themselves."
"A combination of what?"

"Tell me," said Senator Vest, "have you been spoken to by any one since you were subpocased to come here?"
"Yes, air; I was told by the Fairbank Canning Company that I need not come here at all; that it was not necessary."
The absence of prominent dressed beef shippers who had been summoned very visibly irritated Senator Vest. Finally recess was taken until to-morrow, and it is understood Senator Farwell will use his influence to secure the attendance of Messrs. Armour, Morris and others without attachments.

Bebecca Roach in Hock Again. Rebecca Reach in Heck Again.

Rebecca Reach was liberated from jail yesterday morning after serving a ten days term. A little later in the day she became reasonably full of liquor and made a show of herself near Twenty-first and Water streets. Mayor Scabright started after her, but she got the best of a 200-yard chase. Officer Herbert caught iter, however, as she turned a corner and took her to the lockup. On the way she exercised her tongue in a most villainous manner, and drew an immense crowd on Market street.
